

Who are the tutors?

Tutors are Harvey Mudd College students who are recommended by faculty and selected for their technical knowledge and ability to communicate clearly. Tutors complete a training program on how best to answer questions over the phone and how to use their experience to help younger students.

Is the Homework Hotline free?

YES! Both the phone call and the tutoring are free to all student callers. Also, there is no need to register or go anywhere. Students call from the safety and comfort of their homes.

What is the Homework Hotline?

The Harvey Mudd College Homework Hotline is an over-the-phone mathematics and science tutoring service for students in grades 4–12. Our program is modeled after the successful Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology Homework Hotline (tutoring Indiana students since 1991.)

The Homework Hotline

- Reinforces mathematics/science concepts
- Helps students develop problem-solving skills
- Guides students toward answering similar problems on their own
- Encourages students to be active learners

When is the Homework Hotline open?

- 6–9 p.m. (PDT)
- Monday–Thursday
- September–May

Who can use the Homework Hotline?

Students in grades 4–12 who need assistance with their mathematics and science assignments (e.g. homework, studying for a test, reviewing past/future concepts).

What do students need during a tutoring session?

- Homework assignment
- Textbook (if available)
- Paper
- Pencil/pen
- Calculator (if needed)
