

INTERVIEW GUIDELINES

(Adapted from CUPA's Interview Guide for Supervisors (5th Edition).)

Common Interview Mistakes and Their Consequences

Mistake	Consequence
Failing to establish rapport with the applicant	The interview never gets off the ground.
Not knowing what information is needed.	The interviewer does not know what questions to ask the applicant.
Concentrating exclusively on the applicant as a person.	The interviewer does not compare an applicant's demonstrated abilities and experience with the actual job requirements.
Not remaining silent or listening long enough.	The interviewer talks too much and fails to obtain meaningful information from the applicant.
Not allowing sufficient time to observe the applicant's responses and behavior.	The interview is too short and superficial. (An interview of about an hour increases the chances that the applicant will impart meaningful information.)
Incorrectly interpreting information obtained from the applicant.	The interviewer draws the wrong conclusion about the applicant's ability to perform.
Unawareness of or inability to deal directly with biases for or against certain types of applicants (stereotyping).	Hiring decisions are made for reasons that may be indefensible.
Allowing one characteristic or trait of an applicant to be overly influential (either favorably or unfavorably).	Hiring decisions are made for reasons that may be indefensible.
Making a decision on the basis of intuition or first impression instead of on analytical judgment.	Candidates who perform well during the interview might be overlooked.
Using stress techniques designed to trap or fluster the applicant.	The interviewer might not collect relevant information.
Conducting a poorly structured or an unstructured interview.	The interviewer fails to collect relevant or necessary information.
Comparing an applicant's life with one's own life.	Time that should be spent on obtaining information relevant to the job is wasted.
Failing to control or direct the interview.	The interviewer fails to collect all the job-related information.
Asking questions answerable by a simple "yes" or "no."	The interviewer fails to draw the applicant out.
Making judgmental or leading statements.	The interviewer telegraphs desired responses to the applicant.

Common Rating Errors

Name of Error	Description
Halo effect	The tendency to rate a person high on all factors even though the person was outstanding on only one factor
Horns effect	The opposite of the halo effect
Central tendency	The inability to rate all or most applicants anywhere but in the middle
Similar to me	The tendency to rate higher those people who look, act, or have a background most like the interviewer
First impression	Making the hiring decision within the first few minutes of the interview, instead of evaluating all the information from the full interview

Problem Solving

Briefly describe a difficult situation pertinent to the vacant position, doing so in a way that protects the privacy of individuals involved. Ask an open-ended question—one that does not require knowledge of institutional or departmental policies and procedures—about how the applicant would deal with this situation. Encourage the applicant to think out loud and explain the kinds of solutions he or she might try.

An example:

You are working at the front desk of a very busy office. You are answering a 10-line phone bank and have on average 15 walk-ins per hour to direct to appropriate offices and people. At 4 P.M. on a particularly busy day, an outside salesperson approaches your desk at the same time one of the clerks, who is a friend of yours, comes around the corner crying and headed toward your desk. Two outside lines light up at the same time, and the display on your phone tells you the third call coming in is the president's office. What are you going to do?

Another example:

The supervisor of a small work unit that provides service to students is on vacation and, as a result, you are temporarily in charge of the department. One afternoon you overhear two unit members talking about an incident that occurred one week earlier. They are discussing a new employee in the department, someone you hired, and describe this employee's losing his temper with a student. You suspected that the employee in question had a nasty temper but had nothing concrete on which to base the suspicion. This is the first occasion on which you have heard of this incident. What would you do about it?
